

HANCOCK BLOOMING TOWN

Wabash Railroad Brings It Sudden Prosperity.

FARMERS NOW HAVE MONEY

Many Improvements Projected in the Town That Have the Air Permanence.

HANCOCK, Md., July 23.—Hancock, the main point on the Wabash connecting link between Cumberland and Cherry Run, is just now very prosperous, with splendid prospects for the future. The farmers generally seem to have money and are making money in a good business.

The farmers are making money by hauling. Every man who has a team can get plenty of work hauling crosses for the new road. The firm of Bridges & Simpson has contracted to furnish 100,000 ties for the link, and great piles of ties are already strung along the right of way.

This firm employs over 100 men in its various interests. It is operating a large building and sand mine on the edge of Hancock, and is furnishing sand for Wabash masonry work. Many people living in and about the town are working for the Wabash contractors, and a number of the young men are employed on the Wabash and Baltimore and Ohio engineering corps. A number of new houses is going up in the town.

New Masonic Temple.

The lodge of Masons is arranging to build a fine temple, having already secured a site on Main Street. The lodge recently cleared about $1,000 at a fair.

The Hancock Shirt Company will soon be organized, the promoters being Robert F. Shafer and William T. Hamilton, of Hagerstown. It will employ about thirty people. J. T. Bridges & Co. have opened up a brick yard which gives employment to about twenty men.

Antonio Palladino has established a large bakery in the east end of the town. The cement deposits on the Bowles farm, purchased by a party of capitalists, headed by J. Frank Fields, of Hancock, will shortly be developed. The company paid $100,000 for the tract. Henderson Brothers, who purchased the Round Top cement plant, are arranging to rebuild the mill destroyed by fire about two years ago. Both mills are on the Wabash right of way.

An Automobile Livery.

Hancock has a metropolitan enterprise in the shape of an automobile livery. Two new automobiles are in use. The hotels and boarding houses are crowded. Traveling men say business is extra good.

The people are much encouraged by the fact that trains will reach the town from Cherry Run before January, 1935, and work is being pushed rapidly right up to the corporation limit on both sides of the town.

Another impetus for a boom will be the building of the Baltimore and Ohio short line up through the town and Bedford counties. It will pass through the west end of the town.

This cut-off will, it is said, be in connection with the portion of the old South Penn. now in possession of Baltimore and Ohio. The cut-off has been paid for at Hancock, and a large strip of land has been secured for a stock station for additional yard facilities.

DAVID WOLFE BROWN'S FUNERAL TODAY AT 5

Services at the Ontario Will Be Brief.

Burial at Former Home, Lewes, Del.

Brief funeral services for the late David Wolfe Brown, official stenographer of the House of Representatives, will be held at the Ontario at 5 o'clock, today, at 5 o'clock, and the remains will be taken to Mr. Brown's former home, at Lewes, Del., for burial. The Rev. Mr. Hunt, pastor of Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, will officiate at the service today.

Mr. Brown's death Friday night removed from Washington official life one of its best-known figures. For more than forty years he had officially reported the proceedings in the lower house of Congress, and ten years earlier he was initiated into the work by Daniel J. Murphy, who then had the contract for reporting the Senate proceedings. After serving two years in the Senate, Mr. Brown went again to his home in Philadelphia, to become official reporter in the Philadelphia Legislature.

To have occupied one of the foremost positions among stenographers of America was a distinction to which Mr. Brown, whose death was at the age of 65, was entitled. He was a man of great adaptability, his education in the public schools of Philadelphia, and when a student in the high schools he learned the system of stenography which has since brought him into such prominence.

Ben Pittman, the celebrated authority on shorthand, declared that the House proceedings were the most difficult to type of any body he knew of, yet Mr. Brown's notes were accurate, and when submitted to members for any necessary revision, a change was seldom made. He was master of the English language, and his writings on shorthand are among the most valuable works of their kind now in circulation.

Mrs. Brown, her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Brown, and Mrs. A. B. Meny, survive Mr. Brown. A sister and brother live in Philadelphia.

Marine Band at Chevy Chase Lake.

That Chevy Chase Lake is still Washington's favorite suburban resort has been amply attested by the large and appreciative crowds in attendance during the past week. Hundreds ride out every evening to enjoy the Marine Band concerts and the many other desirable attractions. The concert last from about 7:30 until 9, during which time the band renders the best classical and popular music in its usual commendable style. There is always ample seating capacity in the immediate vicinity of the band stand, and the pleasant nature of the surroundings is highly conducive to the fullest enjoyment.

Every evening, Sunday excepted, at the conclusion of the concert, the band renders dance music in the pavilion, giving the dancers an opportunity to enjoy their favorite pastime under most favorable conditions. The motion pictures, bowling, boating, and shooting are other well-patronized attractions.

A program of unusual excellence has been arranged for the usual concert this evening.

HE SHOT FOUR MEN WHO INSULTED GIRL

Herman Miller Makes Short Work of a Gang Who Demanded Beer Money—One Dead, Others in Hospital.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Declaring that he had done it to avenge an alleged insult to a woman, known as his wife, Herman Miller, twenty-two years old, of 238 East Eleventh Street, fired five shots at four men early today in Thirteenth Avenue, between 18th and 19th Streets. Three of the men were struck by the bullets, one being fatally and the others seriously injured, while the fourth man escaped unhurt.

The men were: John Martin, twenty years old, printer, 203 East 16th Street, was shot in abdomen; died in Harlem Hospital.

Dennis Healy, twenty, driver, of 247 Second Avenue, was shot through left thigh.

Frank Kempsey, eighteen years old, of 187 Third Avenue, was the only one of the quartet who escaped unhurt.

Mary Whelan, twenty-one years old, over whom the quarrel started, was taken into custody as a witness, and Miller, the police say, made a confession.

According to the story told to the police by various participants in the fray, the four men were standing on Third Avenue when the Whelan woman came along and greeted Martin, who is said to have replied:

"Oh, get along out of here, you skate. Get up the avenue. Chase yourself."

Made Four Hits.

Words ensued between the four men and the woman, and then, according to Kempsey, the woman cried out, pointing to a man who crossed the street at the time:

"Here comes Joe. He's got a gun and he'll fix you."

Miller at once began firing. The first shot struck Martin in the abdomen and he fell to the sidewalk. The second shot struck Healy in the left thigh, and he went down. Then a bullet caught O'Brien in the left leg near the knee, and as he was limping off the fourth ball pierced his thigh. Kempsey meanwhile had gotten some distance away, and the fifth shot missed him.

Miller, his ammunition exhausted, and with three of his victims lying on the sidewalk, fled through 18th Street to Second Avenue, the woman accompanying him.

Between the hours of 1 and 2 o'clock this morning I was at the house when Winifred Allison came there and told me she had been attacked by a crowd of ruffians who demanded the price of a pint of beer, which she did not have. When she reached 10th Street, the crowd crossed the street, with the can and again approached and insulted her. "I then ran across the avenue where she was and asked what reason they had to demand a pint of beer from her. Then I was struck on the head by one of the ruffians and I thereupon drew my gun, knowing there was no chance to escape, and fired at them."

The beer can that Miller referred to was found in the street near the scene of the encounter. While the woman gave her name as Whelan, the statement of the prisoner indicated that she was known also as Winifred Allison.

Caught in Bed.

Patrolman Edward Ozab started in the direction of the men, and on being told that the man who did the shooting had gone through 18th Street and caught the Whelan woman.

In the meantime a hurry call had been sent to Harlem Hospital for an ambulance, and Dr. Byrnes found that Martin was mortally wounded. The men were taken to the hospital, where Martin died at 3 o'clock.

Streets Being Repaired

Good Trade in Suburban Lots and Buildings—Recent Sales.

F Street, between Twelfth and Fourteenth Streets, is at present the scene of an unusual amount of building for that section. On the northwest corner of Twelfth Street a small building is going up, to be occupied by Rice's photograph gallery. On the southeast corner of Twelfth Street a small office building is being built, while midway of the block, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets, another office building will soon appear.

The repairing of the streets has brought up the old question of closing up thoroughfares.

An effort is being made to prevent the closing up of the important crossings during the progress of street improvements, especially those which are used as thoroughfares by the fire engines in going to fires. However, it does not always seem possible to accomplish this, and the result is that the blockades are continued for days beyond what seems a reasonable period in which to have the work done. The expense of maintaining a crossing when a pavement is being laid is a heavy one, and the result is that the crossing is closed for a longer interval than is absolutely necessary and hence the paying of such crossings is called rush work. It has to be got through in a certain time so that the street will be free for use.

Sales of suburban property continue to be good, and persons holding it find they have nothing to complain of in the matter of returns on their investments. The extension of the trolley lines in recent years and the increase of rents within the city limit have combined to increase the population of suburban sections to a degree not dreamed of ten years ago. In Cleveland Park a number of new houses are going up along the Chevy Chase road which will be ready for occupancy in the early autumn. Not only for the summer months does the popularity of the suburbs sway, but during the winter as well, and no sooner are well arranged houses completed than they find occupants.

R. Ross Perry, Jr., et al., trustees for the John Ross estate, have sold, through L. Richard, real estate broker, to Lee Baumgardner, the row of houses of which the Ross estate consists, situated along the block on Four-and-a-Half Street, south of Pennsylvania Avenue, and extending to Missouri Avenue, and including 10 to 110. Mr. Baumgardner intends making such changes as will improve the property as an investment.

H. M. Martin, formerly the senior member of the firm of Martin, Brown, and real estate broker, has returned to Washington, and re-established himself in business at 174 Pennsylvania Avenue, north of the new Navy and Navy departments, where he is conducting a general real estate business. His sale of real estate lots in his recent addition to Chevy Chase.

LUNATIC ANNOUNCES HE WILL ASSASSINATE

Awaits His Release From St. Elizabeth's in Order to Kill at Wholesale.

Issac Oppenheimer, who on Friday was declared to be insane and was committed to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for the Insane, proposes, according to his own statement, to become a most brutal and anarchistic criminal when he leaves the United States army, and make known his murderous intent to the Secretary of War, by letter, in October last.

In his letter to the Secretary Oppenheimer said the Government had done him many wrongs, and he intended to get revenge. He said he had the opportunity, to murder men, women, and children. "Not," he said, because any one in particular had done him any injury, but merely for revenge, because of the wrongs done him by the Government.

While Oppenheimer was an enlisted man he was tried by court-martial for a serious crime and sentenced to a long period of imprisonment. His mind became unbalanced, and he was committed to a hospital in San Francisco, for treatment. He was afterward brought to St. Elizabeth's Asylum. While there the War Department commuted the unexpired part of his sentence. There was some delay in the matter, and Oppenheimer, who is a native of Russia, and the superintendent of the asylum declined to release him at that time, because it would be dangerous to the community.

Oppenheimer then procured the services of Attorney John E. Taylor, and sought to gain his release from the hospital through habeas corpus proceedings. The petition was presented to Justice Gould, who directed that an inquiry be made as to Oppenheimer's mental condition.

At the hearing yesterday Oppenheimer testified in his own defense, and admitted that he had been insane, but he said he was now sane, and he said he would like to see the Government.

He also said that he struck a fellow patient in St. Elizabeth's, and broke one of his legs, and he said he intended to act by saying that the man he struck annoyed him, and would not let him sleep. At the hearing the lunatic said he was a lamb, and was one of the best behaved patients in the world.

Several physicians testified that Oppenheimer is of unsound mind and an unfit person to be at large. Testimony was offered to show that if Oppenheimer is released from the asylum his brother and father, who reside in Ohio, are willing to take care of him.

$25,000 FOR BOXER VICTIM.

SHARON, Pa., July 23.—Heirs of the Rev. Frank Sharon, of Grove City, who, with his wife and three children, was murdered by Boxers four years ago in Pootung-Pu, have received the last of a $25,000 indemnity from the Chinese government.
